A fresh group of people have been evacuated from Mumbai's Oberoi hotel — a group of about 20 airline crew members, almost all Westerners.

Several of the rescued airline staff were in Lufthansa and Air France uniforms, and a bus immediately took them away from the hotel, which had been stormed by gunmen late Wednesday.

One crew member in a Lufthansa uniform who wore a name tag identifying her as L. Laurence said things inside the hotel "were definitely not good."

"We're just very glad we're out."

About two dozen people had been evacuated from the hotel earlier Friday.

More than 119 people were killed and hundreds more injured when suspected Islamic militants attacked 10 sites in Mumbai.
