NEW DELHI: Terrorism is a global threat that has led to "unprecedented cooperation" between Indian and American security agencies, FBI Director Robert Mueller said on Tuesday in New Delhi.

Mueller was in the Indian capital to discuss the investigation into the deadly Islamist militant attacks in Mumbai last November, which India blamed on the Pakistan-based militant group Lashkar-e-Taiba (LeT).

"Terrorism is not just a local issue. It is not an issue of one country, it is an issue across the world," Mueller told reporters after meeting with Home Minister Palaniappan Chidambaram.

"We have seen unprecedented cooperation between our various agencies both during the Mumbai attacks and after," he said.

The United States welcomed Pakistan's arrest of six suspects last month as a "positive step," but joined India in saying Pakistan needed to do more to dismantle radical militant outfits operating on its soil.

"Each of us are intent on assuring that those responsible are brought to justice," Mueller said.

Mueller also met National Security Advisor M.K. Narayanan and Rajiv Mathur, the head of India's domestic spy agency, the Intelligence Bureau, to discuss security and counter-terrorism operations. He is due to head to Pakistan on Wednesday.

The November 26-29 Mumbai attacks, which killed 165 people, soured a five-year peace process between nuclear-armed India and Pakistan.
