

Home » News » India » Mumbai

Shot in the back, he limped home to die

Friday, 28 November 2008 - 3:32am IST | Agency: dna

0 Shares

Facebook

Twitter

Google+

Reddit

0 Comments

After shooting Thakur Waghela, a ward boy at his residence near Cama Hospital, the terrorists ran ahead and shot Bhagan Shinde, 35, a ward boy employed at GT Hospital.

After shooting Thakur Waghela, a ward boy at his residence near Cama Hospital, the terrorists ran ahead and shot Bhagan Shinde, 35, a ward boy employed at GT Hospital. "Shinde had gone to look for his wife and happened to be in the middle of the road when the terrorists ran by firing bullets," said Shinde's neighbour.

Shinde was shot in the back but managed to walk into his house where he stayed all night. "We couldn't take him to the hospital, as the terrorists were outside," said the neighbour.

The terrorists later turned back and ran into Cama Hospital, where they stayed till about 3 am. "They went to the sixth floor of the hospital building, where a large hall meant to be used as a delivery ward is located. We heard them firing shots all night," said a neighbour.

Two security guards at Cama Hospital, Baban Ugadhe and Bhanu Narkar, who resisted the terrorists had to pay with their lives. "The entire sixth floor hall is riddled with bullet marks," a policeman stationed at Cama Hospital said.

0 Shares  Facebook  Twitter  Google+  Reddit 0 Comments

Jump to comments

---

FROM AROUND THE WEB

Welcome to Europe's Jihadi Corridor

OZY

What Going On With the Tiny Newborns in Korea?

OZY

When One Punch Kills

OZY